Introduction

The first census with personal details was conducted in 1841, when 228 inhabitants were recorded at Barkham in 45 houses. Of the 75 male inhabitants over the age of 12, there were 7 farmers, 47 farm workers and 7 servants (at Barkham Manor and Barkham Square). Out of 70 female inhabitants over twelve, 9 were in domestic service. The occupations of wives and unmarried daughters were not recorded, but in the absence of any cottage industry most would have had to work hard looking after large households and helping in the fields at harvest time. 36% of the inhabitants were children under 13.

The labouring families in Barkham lived principally in four locations, namely Coombs Hill (now Hayes Lane), Langley Common, Barkham Street and Long Moor. 78.5% of the inhabitants of Barkham in 1841 were born in Berkshire, but what proportion were born in Barkham is not known. As an agricultural parish, there would have been a high degree of mobility, labourers being hired for twelve months at a time at the Michaelmas hiring fairs. The number born in the parish was probably already less than one-half, since by 1851 the proportion was 44%.

Employment opportunities for local inhabitants, male or female alike, at Barkham Manor or Barkham Square were few, however, since their gentlemen tenants tended to bring their own servants with them, and to continue to recruit staff, from outside the parish.

The population of Barkham in the nineteenth century peaked at 280 in 1861 and 284 in 1891, falling back to 218 by 1901. Of the 86 male inhabitants over the age of 12 in 1901, there were 4 farmers (10 out of 91 in 1891), 39 farm workers and 11 indoor/outdoor servants. Out of 84 female inhabitants over twelve, 13 were in domestic service (21 out of 91 in 1891). 21% of the inhabitants were children under 13 (33% in 1891). By 1901 only 51 people living in Barkham had been born in the parish (and half of those were children under 13), but 89 inhabitants (41%) had been born in other parishes no further than 15 miles from Barkham.

The proportion of adult male inhabitants engaged in agriculture fell from 84% in 1871 to 50% in 1901, doubtless a reflection of the Great Depression, whilst those employed as indoor/outdoor servants increased during this period from 7% to 13%. More significantly, the number of artisans increased from 6 (7%) in 1891 to 16 (18%) in 1901, including 10 brickmakers and bricklayers, who probably worked in the growing industrial centres of Reading and Bracknell. This is the first evidence that the industrial revolution was beginning to have an impact on Barkham.
